Nominee for Secretary, AISS EXCO 2012/13

The keyword is cohesion. Through building a strong bonding among the student leaders, follow by influencing others in joining the circle of a cohesive community. Firstly, facilitating the student leaders to have fun, building a firm friendship and partnership. On board a ship, like a crew of shipmates, shall reach their destination.

Subsequently, there shall be activity groups in motion, center around the interests of the student leaders. Such as a gourmet club and a sports club. Since these groups are led by the student leaders whose passion lies on these activities. Others, inflicted by their passion, shall be bonded by their common interests. Elaborating one of the examples, a gourmet club, will encourage members to seek for gourmets continuously. With a common goal, everyone will be working collectively towards their goal. Also enjoying the privileged prices, being possible by the quantity and potential marketing, that are offered by the gourmet club from negotiation with the gourmet providers.

To conduct activities that are on a larger scale, such as a fund raising campaign or a community service project, will be demanding in resources. With a student society that is engaged actively by its members, different groups of people can contribute for the greater good, since everyone belongs to a big family. Of course, the activities are not limited to community service, but also other activities that will benefit the students in their studies and endeavours in career.

With all the potential that can be unleashed within the student society, the contribution from the students leaders shall be acknowledged and remembered. Through a periodic ceremony to recognise their contribution, hence will inspire others continuously.

Mr Sam Kew Jun Siong